Counting the Days until December 24: The Treasured NOMOS Advent Calendar

The NOMOS Advent Calendar

Timepieces until Christmas Eve: This year, each open door reveals more valuable gifts than ever before. Five hand-made watches from NOMOS Glashütte are among them.

GLASHÜTTE DURING ADVENT 2021. Made for counting down the days, shortening the time until the celebrations begin and spreading festive cheer: The Advent calendar. Whereas early versions of this "clock" consisted of being allowed to place a single straw stalk in the manger each day or to wipe away one of 24 chalk lines, modern Advent calendars provide a true glimpse of celebrations to come: A little gift each day.

This year, NOMOS Glashütte is particularly lavish. Behind the 24 doors even more watches and other valuable gifts bide their time. In addition to our own hand-made products, there are cases and bracelets, bags and other leather goods, writing utensils, and design classics.

And everyone gets to open the NOMOS doors each day: From December 1, simply register, click, and win at the NOMOS website. Chances of winning the gift of the day have been exceptionally favorable in previous years—so it's worth joining in this year as well. However, only heaven knows the winner, i.e. a Christmas angel at watchmaker NOMOS Glashütte—also a horologist by day—using a random generator.

Do you want to give your readers a chance to win too? We would be delighted for you to publish, share, and post our calendar. We have more pictures and information if you are interested.

Wishing you a happy holiday season.

Now included in the NOMOS Advent calendar: Watches like the classic Tangente. Much like NOMOS Glashütte watches, the NOMOS Glashütte Advent calendar also keeps time by counting down the days until Christmas. In fact, people used to call these calendars “Christmas clocks.” But unlike its ancestors, which contained images or devotional quotes, the NOMOS calendar brings valuable gifts each and every day—including watches.

Also included: Tangente by NOMOS Glashütte. The famous classic timepiece, hand-made with 175 years of Glashütte watchmaking expertise, is one of the gifts found in this year's Advent calendar from NOMOS Glashütte. It is a special edition—but we won't yet tell you which.

We are celebrating Christmas Eve on December 24. The date is already set on NOMOS watch Tangente 38. Made for counting down the days, shortening the time until the celebrations start, and spreading festive cheer: The Advent calendar. Whereas early versions of this “clock” consisted merely of being allowed to place a single straw stalk in the manger each day or to wipe away one of 24 chalk lines, modern Advent calendars, like this one from NOMOS Glashütte, provide a true glimpse of celebrations to come: A little gift each day. It even includes watches from Glashütte! Now at www.nomos-glashuette.com
