PanelClaw becomes the first global supplier of solar panel mounting systems for the C&I rooftop market

Munich (ots) -

CPX is rebranded as PanelClaw Europe, creating a true, global supplier of rooftop racking products and services focused on commercial and industrial PV projects.

Enstall, a leading provider of solar panel mounting systems, is excited to announce the re-branding of CPX to PanelClaw. This change aligns the established PanelClaw US team with a highly capable European team. The two organizations will now share experience, products, digital solutions and an innovation road map with a focus on supporting C&I rooftop customers in the US, Europe and eventually, worldwide.

"With the urgency to expedite the adoption of sustainable solar solutions, this step marks a significant milestone in our journey," says Stijn Vos, CEO of Enstall. "By consolidating over 15 years of experience, our expertise and resources, we aim to deliver better solutions to all stakeholders in the rapidly growing Global C&I PV space."

PanelClaw's success and reputation in the US market stems from its deep understanding of and experience navigating the complexities of individual projects and large portfolios in the C&I rooftop sector. Over the past year, CPX started building a similar skillset in the EU market. Together, the expanded team is extremely well positioned to meet the varied demands of insurers, investors, technical consultancy firms, building owners, solar developers, EPC companies and installers.

"A global presence combined with local knowledge aligns our business with major property developers and international real estate entities, who are increasingly embracing solar energy solutions" says PanelClaw US CEO, Costa Nicolaou. "We are excited to extend the PanelClaw brand to Europe and to collaborate with our customers in North America and Europe to deliver on the partnership promise, the reliability track record, and world-class service."

This change exemplifies Enstall's commitment to innovation and sustainability, driving forward the global transition to sustainable solar energy for future generations. By harnessing the synergies between PanelClaw and CPX, Enstall aims to lead the charge in globally servicing the solar industry.
